Our Standards, Promises and Process

Our Standards for Quality Customer Service

We ensure that our clients are well informed and updated on an ongoing basis, from preorder to shipping. Our promise is to follow up on each step of the process, and provide guidance whenever needed. Through this standard, we strive to bring our clients a transparent and enjoyable experience.

Our Promise for a Quality Product

Our products are made with the finest ingredients, made certain through quality check points from seed to final product.

From Our Supply Chain

Our plants are selectively chosen based on their high cannabitol and low THC content. Their seeds are planted and then grown with simple organic principles: no pesticides, no herbicides. When the plant matures, the CBD is extracted with ethanol to ensure high CBD content. Afterwards, the CBD is distilled one or two more times to further ensure purity. A CO² extraction process is used for select products.

From Our Lab

Using only premium quality ingredients, our talented chemists experiment with different flavors and fragrances to produce truly unique CBD applications. Our CBD products are developed in an ISO 9 certified laboratory. Our laboratory is properly cleaned and maintained according to federal and state safety laws and procedures.

From Our Brand Architects

Our team of CBD brand gurus have the experience, creativity and know-how to understand what type of aesthetics and marketing messaging will help make your brand stand out to CBD consumers. Our designers ensure impactful designs based off of our rigorous market research.

From Production & Shipping

All of our products are produced with the greatest attention to detail and monitored via quality control checks throughout the production process. Our quality control measures ensure that any defects are found immediately and discarded and/or adjusted.

Our shipping department carefully handles orders prior to shipment. We pay special attention to the way your order is shipped and use quality materials to lessen the chance of deterioration during shipping. However, we cannot guarantee that there will be no damage incurred from postage. If there is any damage, please contact us to rectify.

CBD Products Manufactured with a Purpose

We are committed to bringing cutting edge innovation in all the services we offer. This philosophy is our guiding light in product development, branding and production.

Your vision brought to life

We're more than just your supplier. We're your partner in success.

Some of the most talented CBD brand designers, chemists, marketers, and professionals in the industry are right here, in house, eager to bring your creations to life.

What is CBD?

CBD is short for cannabidiol, which is one of many compounds, called cannabinoids, that are found in the cannabis (hemp and marijuana) plant. Cannabidiol is one of over 120 known cannabinoids in the cannabis plant.

Cannabinoids are what gives the hemp plant its effects when consumed or applied to the human body, by interacting with the cannabinoid receptors that every human has. CBD has all the wellness benefits of THC (tetrahydrocannabinol), the psychoactive cannabinoid found in cannabis, without producing the “high.” In other words, CBD is non-psychoactive but still offers all the benefits that the marijuana plant offers.

How is hemp different from marijuana and how is it used in your products?

Hemp is a breed of the cannabis plant that has less than .3% THC. We use only American sourced industrial hemp (which is legal in all states) to produce the CBD oil used in the products we produce.

CBD oil contains trace amounts of many other cannabinoids such as CBC, CBG and CBN – some even include trace amounts of THC. All of these cannabinoids working together create what is commonly called the “entourage effect”.

This entourage of cannabinoids work with the endocannabinoid system (your body’s natural infrastructure for interacting with cannabinoids) to produce positive effects on mood, energy, brain function, and overall well-being.

Why are we hearing so much about CBD and seeing it in all kinds of products?

CBD has become very popular due to the increase in knowledge and acceptance of its wellness benefits and non-psychoactive properties. Along with the myriad of scientific journals, studies and evidence indicating the same, We have gathered a variety of successful testimonial usage of CBD for combating pain relief, sleep issues, anxiety, PTSD, skin conditions, and much more.

We encourage consumers to do their own research and consult their health care professionals for advice on the best options to pursue for their conditions.

How does CBD work?

Believe it or not, endocannabinoids are already naturally produced in the human body. These endocannabinoids bind to cannabinoid receptors to regulate mood, pain, sensation, appetite, and memory. Cannabinoid receptors are located all over the human body and are activated by naturally occurring or plant cannabinoids (hemp, marijuana).

When should my customers take CBD, and how much?

Many find taking CBD daily in the morning and before bed yields the best results. Dosage varies from individual to individual, and what works for one person may not work for another. Encourage your customers to do their own individual research to find the intake routine best for them.

Our Farms and Suppliers

Sharing in our vision to make CBD oil accessible to all via a myriad of applications, our farm partners are active in hemp plant research. Working in conjunction with our product development team, together we are given the unique opportunity to create product categories that innovate and excite.

In keeping with one of our core philosophies of quality first, our hemp plants are grown according to strict guidelines. Cultivated in the fertile fields of Oregon, our farms remain not only pesticide and herbicide free but are tested regularly to ensure healthy growth.

True to our quality standards, our hemp plants are tenderly cared for without the use of herbicides or pesticides.

*Innovative and proprietary harvesting & crop processing technologies produce unmatched purity
and quality.*

Our partners in Oregon and Colorado have been pioneering the hemp agriculture farming practices that lead the industry.

Why Coconut Oil is the best base for CBD

We produce CBD oil with the help of coconut oil. Unlike the common oils you find in fatty foods like Bacon or French Fries (LCTs), coconut oil is a (MCT), falling in the category of Medium Chain Fats. MCTs are a top source of essential healthy fats. MCT Fats allow you to absorb nutrients efficiently and are burned by the body for energy instead of being “stored” in the body. Medium-chain fats are digested easily and sent directly to your liver, where they have a thermogenic effect and the ability to positively alter your metabolism.

Oils like olive or hemp seed oil¹ are not as effective as coconut oil in absorbing CBD. This is because coconut oil is up to 90% saturated fat as opposed to olive or hemp oil, which is around 11 to 14% respectively. Since coconut oil allows for maximum absorption in the body, it is the perfect carrier oil to use for CBD products.

While CBD tinctures consist of CBD oil created with MCT Oil (Coconut Oil), CBD e-liquids are vapable products that use inhalable carrier oils, as well as VG (Vegetable Glycerin) & PG (Propylene Glycol).

Benefits of Using Medium Chain Fatty Acids²

How CBD Interacts with the Endocannabinoid Receptors

CB1 receptors are found in the peripheral and central nervous system. This includes the brain, lungs, vascular system, muscles, reproductive organs, the GI and the urinary tract.

When bound, CB1 receptors affect executive functions such as memory processing, motor control, and pain management.

CB2 receptors are found on white blood cells, tonsils, and the spleen. Unlike CB1 receptor stimulation, CB2 receptors do not have psychoactive effects when stimulated. This fact, along with the fact that they regulate the inflammation and cancers of the liver, colon, immune system, spleen, pancreas, and bones, has made them of particular interest to researchers and doctors.

In the late 1990s the GPR55 was discovered in the brain. Recently, the GPR55 molecule was also discovered in the adrenal glands, GI tract, and spleen. It is now thought to be an entirely new CB receptor: CB3. This hypothesis is still being tested in research, but has implications in aiding trauma and regulating cancer cells.

Endocannabinoid receptors work with cannabinol molecules under a “lock and key” principle. Cannabinol molecules bind to receptors on the body similar to how a key is placed into a lock. When CBD is administered, endocannabinoids are released by the body, and bind to the CB1 or CB2 receptors. The receptors that are stimulated largely depends on whether the CBD is Full Spectrum or Isolate. Isolate can stimulate one specific receptor, whereas full spectrum stimulates both CB1 and CB2 receptors.

Full Spectrum vs Isolate

Full Spectrum	Isolate
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Full Spectrum facilitates the entourage effect by allowing all cannabinoid compounds to work together, resulting in all the benefits of CBD being retained. • Full Spectrum includes all of the plant matter, thereby giving the product a full range of most (if not all) cannabinoids available. • Full Spectrum is the best choice for consumers looking to use CBD for general medicinal purposes. • Full spectrum CBD will affect more than one cluster of CB receptors. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Isolate is used to evoke specific effects and eradicate specific symptoms. For example, an isolate designed to work on the CB1 receptor may provide sedation to the central nervous system only, whereas an isolate that binds to the CB2 receptors may only reduce inflammation in areas like the spleen. • Isolate is a great way to make a CBD line focused on providing specific relief to a specific symptom. • Isolates treat specific symptoms at higher concentrations of CBD, which is great in treating severe symptoms. • Taking isolates with full spectrum CBD can overwhelm specific CB receptors.

Different Ways to Take CBD

Oral Applicators

Pure hemp oil from oral applicators are taken under the tongue and held for 60 seconds before being swallowed. This maximizes your CBD regimen.

2

Topicals

CBD Topicals for skin soothing salves, hemp oil shampoo, conditioner, body wash, and deep moisturizers, and anti-aging skin care.

3

Vaporizer

When vaporized, CBD enters the bloodstream more easily and avoids passing through the digestive tract and the liver. An efficient method for taking CBD.

4

Edibles

CBD edibles are specially designed foods that contain hemp oil. CBD edibles are one of the easiest and best forms in which to receive your CBD.

5

Capsules

CBD hemp oil, the perfect daily solution to CBD supplements. Simply mix them with your existing vitamins and supplements each morning.

6

Liquids

CBD hemp oil liquid can be taken by itself or easily blended into food or water smoothie for a healthy lifestyle supplement.

CBD Capsules

AVAILABLE IN FULL SPECTRUM & ISOLATE

Popular among doctors and vape dispensaries, CBD Capsules are one of many essential product lines to offer consumers. Best taken with a full glass of water, CBD capsules are ingested like any other supplement or medicinal pill. As such, this method of consuming CBD is familiar to the everyday consumer.

Although not as quick to enter the bloodstream as vaping cartridges or e-liquids, CBD capsules are a great solution for consumers who don't like to vape or are turned off by other methods of taking CBD.

We can supply small or large inventory at affordable pricing, and offer low MOQ's.
